

10.6 Indefinite pronouns / Αόριστες Αντωνομίες

Indefinite pronouns refer to one or more unspecified persons and objects.

The following table shows some of the indefinite pronouns with examples.

ένας, μία, ένα	someone, somebody	Ένας είπε... Somebody said... Κανένας δεν ήρθε. Nobody came. Δεν είπα τίποτα. I said nothing.
κανένας (κανείς), καμιά (καμία), κανένα (with a positive meaning: someone, one, anyone), (with a negative meaning: noone, nobody) κάθε (indeclinable)	every	Attention: If “ κανένας (κανείς), καμιά (καμία), κανένα ” and “ τίποτα ” are used in a negative sentence with a verb, the negative words “ δε(v) ” or “ μη(v) ” have to be used as well. Notice that Greek uses double negative.
καθένας, καθεμιά, καθένα	anyone, each κάποιος, κάποια, κάποιο	somebody, someone μερικοί, μερικές, μερικά	some, any κάτι (indeclinable)	something, some τίποτα (τίποτε) (indeclinable)	(with a positive meaning: anything, any), (with a negative meaning: nothing)
άλλος, άλλη, άλλο	another

Notice that κάποιος, -α, -ο, κανένας (κανείς), καμιά (καμία), κανένα and μερικοί, -ες, -α are used without article, while άλλος, -η, -ο, κάθε and καθένας, καθεμιά, καθένα may be used with or without article.
